700 Turn Out to Hear Candidates Talk, Spring Hill

State Senate Candidates Go First, and Assessors Second

TALK AT GUERNSEY

There Wednesday, Fulton at Night, Thursday at Saratoga

By J. T. BOWDEN, JR.

Spring Hill was host Tuesday to the county stump tour on the second day of the 1938 campaign. Roy Butler of the school acted as chairman during the morning, with J. N. Davis, school superintendent, sharing the job in the afternoon.

Only candidates for county and district offices were present, but several aspirants to state jobs had representatives on the ground.

The crowd was probably largest just before the noon recess, when it was estimated that about 700 were listening to the speakers.

State Senate Race

Due to the fact that the candidates for state senator had a speaking engagement to fill Tuesday night they were given first place on the program.

W. F. Reagan, Pike county entrant, led off with a review of his past record, and followed with his qualifications for the senate seat.

James Pilkinton, aspirant for the same position as Reagan, was the next to speak. He asked that the voters seriously consider the job at stake and to elect the man whom they thought had the determination and fight to stand up for the rights of the people at home.

C. Cook and Dewey Hendrix, entrants in the race for tax assessor, faced the microphone next and made short announcements regarding their candidacies.

Gifford Byers, led off for the county clerk aspirants and received a nice round of applause. The man who followed, Frank J. Hill, native of Spring Hill, received the big hand of the day. Andrew (Speedy) Hutson followed with a short talk regarding his place in the race.

Five of the eight candidates for representative spoke before the noon recess. They were: J. A. Sullivan, John P. Vesey, Geo. D. Brown, Royce Weissenberger and A. P. Delaney. After dinner Talbot Field, Jr., and Hugh D. Clark presented their candidacies for the same office. W. B. Nelson, of Washington, the other man in the race, was not present.

Reginald Bearden, Clarence Baker and John W. Griffin presented their qualifications for the office of sheriff and collector to the listeners in short talks.

Joe Booker, representing his brother Lester Booker, candidate for state land commissioner, spoke a few words in behalf of the latter. His remarks were well received by the crowd.

Candidates for Prosecutor

Lyle Brown, of Arkadelphia, was the first of the prosecuting attorney candidates to speak. He stated his early life and schooling in a few words and then took up the issues of the office.

"The prosecuting attorney must be a man, one with the best morals. . . . I am a poor boy, God-fearing. I am honest and I try to pay my debts. Training and experience are necessary in the holding of this important trust."

My education I received by hard work and teaching school. . . . I was elected representative from Clark county four years ago. Two years later I was re-elected for a second term.

That is the first time such a thing has happened in my county in over 20 years.

"For the past two and one-half years I have been deputy prosecuting attorney for my county and have handled cases ranging from chicken stealing to kidnapping and murder. . . . Your prosecutor should be a scrapper, one who will stand up and fight when the odds are against him. I am that kind of a fighter. . . . I will not be persecutor but first, last and always a persecutor."

In closing, Mr. Brown said that he did not want one sympathetic vote but that he could get on his qualifications.

WASHINGTON.—The plight of unfortunate millions who have no money for medical care poses this baffling question before the American people today:

"Who's going to pay the doctor bills of the poor and how shall it be done?"

There are suggestions that the government take over the job. There are equally emphatic objections to any such program—coming chiefly from the American Medical Association which contends that government-controlled medical care would tend to "segment" the profession.

"Who's going to pay the doctor bills of the poor and how shall it be done?"

Alfred Yarbrough, 19, and J. D. Blankenship, Jr., 14, survivors of an explosion last week at the Cox Bros. cotton gin in Fulton which resulted in the fatal injury of Alfred H. Futrell were reported to be on the road to recovery Wednesday.

Both are still confined to their rooms at Julia Chester hospital. Blankenship has extensive burns on the back and arms. Yarbrough is the less seriously injured, suffering with burns on the hands and feet.

The explosion occurred when a short circuit in a wiring system exploded a supply of gasoline being used to clean machinery in open tubs.

The Market—A Barometer That Changes the Weather

IT IS quite usual to think of the 1928-29 era as a time when everybody was buying stocks; there were jokes about boot-blacks taking a flyer in the market.

We think of that as a bygone time, as a strange phenomenon which flared up and died away.

That is why it comes as a surprise to see Barron's financial weekly asserting that there are today more stockholders in the country than ever before.

The result of a survey made by the magazine indicates that there are probably 25,000,000 holders of common and preferred stock in the country today. Allowing for duplications due to those who hold several stocks, the estimate is that somewhere between seven and eight million Americans own stocks, half of them being stockholders in the 1000 leading corporations.

NOW that is a very large number of people. It is four or five times as large as the American Legion, which exerts a very considerable influence on national affairs. It is probably as big as the whole of organized labor, both A. F. of L. and C. I. O. taken together. It is equal to the whole population of great states like Illinois, Ohio, or Texas.

And, despite the disillusionment of 1929-33, despite eight long years of depression, the stockholding group is found by Barron's to be growing rather than declining. Further than that, it has been growing recently at a faster rate than it did in the days before the depression.

THERE it is small wonder that the recent flurry in the stock market caused a thrill along the whole business community. It is all very well to say that the stock market merely reflects or discounts in advance business conditions. But with seven or eight million people directly interested in stocks, the psychological effect of the course of the market is bound to be great. Thus "the market" not only is influenced by business conditions, it is in itself an influence on those conditions.

Whether you deplore it as a new martingale of lambs for some future shearing, or welcome it as evidence of more people having a direct stake in the national economy, the bare fact that more people than ever before are stock-owners is a significant one which ought not to be left out of the calculations of all political and social soothsayers.

IF YOU'RE looking forward to the withdrawal of Italian troops from the war in Spain, don't be too nervous about going home for lunch for fear you'll miss the finish. You'll probably have time for an after-dinner cigar and a nap to boot.

The Anglo-Italian non-intervention agreement may be about to begin to get ready to start to go into effect. The two warring Spanish factions are now studying the paper's terms. And if the terms aren't acceptable to both sides, the whole thing will be called off temporarily and some satisfactory adjustments may be considered.

But suppose the agreement is accepted tomorrow. Then the matter will come up before the full Anglo-Italian committee for formal adoption. It is estimated that this step will take about a month. The agreement allows 45 days after that for the dispatch of two counting commissions, approval of their estimates of the number of Italian volunteers and creation process which will then begin is allowed 100 days. Final wind-up of the whole thing is allowed 64 days after that.

So—maybe—if everything goes all right—the Italian boys will be out of the trenches in time to greet the next Ice Age.

Or maybe even in time to celebrate the Spanish armistice.

The Family Doctor

T. M. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.Sprayed Fruit and Vegetables Should Be Washed Thoroughly

(This is the second and concluding article by Dr. Fishbein in which he discusses fruit and vegetable sprays.)

The Council on Foods of the American Medical Association has said that food products should never contain toxic contaminants that may endanger health. Fresh fruits and vegetables which have been sprayed with poisonous mixtures to kill insects and particularly moths—should be carefully washed with plenty of water or with some special solvent solution before they are used. Washing with plain water does not always assure complete removal of all the material used in sprays.

Naturally distributors of foods have a serious responsibility to the public and they themselves should make certain that the products as presented for consumption are entirely wholesome.

Manufacturers now make available to fruit growers dipping tanks in which the fruit is put into a concentration of 1 per cent hydrochloric acid for two or three minutes. This method is not altogether convenient, and is used only for very small amounts of fruit.

In packing plants in which oranges, grapefruit, apples, and other fruits are handled in large amounts, machines are used with flotation-type washers, in which the fruit floats through the tanks on the surface of the solution and is constantly turned over and submerged as it passes. Such devices will handle from 2000 to 3000 bushels per day.

The two materials that have proved most satisfactory for the removal of spray residues are hydrochloric acid, already described, and sodium silicate and fluorine. The sodium silicate solutions are less effective for apples than acid solutions, and sodium silicate is not generally recommended in the eastern part of the United States where the spraying material differs from that used in the western portions of the United States.

Of course it is important to rinse the fruit thoroughly after it has been treated and then dry it. If this is not done, the fruit may be marked except on the train.

He apparently didn't know about the $100,000 in the dressing case and he hadn't mentioned a man with Dillon. Where did Sarto come in, and for that matter, how about Fiske?

Well-Meaning Children May Break Under the Burden of Too Much Criticism

(No. 153) Frank wondered if the Scoutmaster had heard of his fight. He simply couldn't help it. The horrible little boy down the street had been teasing him for months. He was a nasty one, this Waldo, and he had spit on Frank twice when he was wearing his uniform.

Yesterday Frank had stopped and grabbed the kid by the collar. Frank started to give him a good shaking.

Waldo bit him. There was nothing to do then but go at it with fists and settle this right. Waldo's clothes were torn and his mother telephoned to Frank's mother.

Yes, the scoutmaster had heard. Someone had told. And Frank was reprimanded.

He took his talking-to standing up, and did not try to explain. He had fought, with his uniform on, and a smaller boy, at that.

He was behind in his school work. His father scolded him, but Frank explained that every morning when he had the notion to study, he had to go to errands or cut grass or wash the car. In the afternoons it was too hot and in the evening everybody was outside and a fellow couldn't stay inside with the whole street having a good time.

One day Mr. Watchwell, the minister, sent for Frank and went into the matter of nobility of character, saying he was disappointed in him. He was very kind, but Frank felt that life was a good failure.

It just seemed that everyone was against him. Something was wrong. He felt ashamed and yet misunderstood. Never too sure of himself, sensitive and really anxious to please, he was losing all the faith he had left.

Then Cal came. Cal said, "Why be such a sot? You're afraid of your shadow. I wouldn't stand for all this grandiosa talk if I were you. So just take it easy and do as you please."

Never had Frank felt so relieved and happy. The standards set were too high for him. He threw up the whole thing and stayed away from home all he could. He learned to fib and still look innocent. For the first time he did not feel inferior or guilty. He was at home with other boys who made their own laws.

This is likely to happen to any child who is easily criticized. The inferiority child is glad to escape.

Standards are absolutely necessary in our families. Children, as well as adults, must strain to reach them. But it sometimes happens that the strain breaks the morale of the boy or girl, who feels keenly the stigma of failure. Then escape is the only way out. Escape may be almost anything.

Mann Has Faith in Democracy—He Warns It Needs Constant Adjustment

It is a bit ironic that an intellectual exile from Nazi Germany should point the way to a re-examination and appreciation of the American dream, but that is just what Thomas Mann has done in "The Coming Victory of Democracy" (Knopf, $10). And a more brilliant essay you will not find in a long time than this reprint of the lecture he delivered recently in the United States.

Mann holds implicit faith in the ultimate triumph of democracy over fascism because of its unlimited powers of self-renewal, and, more important, because it is a form of government which is inspired with the feeling and the consciousness of the dignity of man. Fascism, he is emphatic, is thoroughly false. But it does command action and novelty. Hence its attraction.

It's convincingly done, except that the other woman skater doesn't happen to be Miss Bruce. It's Lorettie Rush, a stunt girl double, and an expert on skates. I stand on the sidelines with Miss Bruce and find she's suffering vicariously as Miss Rush tumbles all over the ice. "Gh, I hurt all over, just watching her!" the star murmers. "Oh, last night crowd of skaters. But look! —Loretta —Loretta—you'll kill yourself!"

The two principals really are bruised, because the day before they took a lot of tumbles for earlier scenes and closeups. And today they have consented to fall a couple of times for the battery of still photographers.

Norman McLeod, the director, stops to say hello and is rubbed for his absent-mindedness of the morning. March tells the story, and shows a written memo to prove it. "McLeod wrote this to himself yesterday: 'Norm—Go to Polar Palace tomorrow morning, $30—signed.' Norm: So today he gets up and drives clear out of the studio, finds it deserted, and only then remembers that he's directing pictures down here."

At the end of the rink sits an orchestra which is supposed to be playing for the skaters. The bandmen only go through the motions, however, and the music comes from a playback machine. Each musician gets $1 a day to sit there, but if he actually were to play for the picture he'd get $10 an hour. And so, for their own amusement, and to keep warm, the players are drunk, Walter Ridge dives for a chair, falls on his face and sends the chair skidding across the ice and under her.

"Who did you say you was?" asked the foreman.

"John Barrymore!"

"Oh, sure," said the other apologetically, "the old ball player."

Fredric March and Virginia Bruce Take It Easy on Ice—Despite Themselves

HOLLYWOOD.—The rink of the Palace is dotted with a typical Saturday night crowd of skaters. But look! —Loretta —Loretta—you'll kill yourself!"

On the State Highway

Every day from my window high,
I view the street as the cars go by;
Fast through it runs like a ribbon
white,
The State Highway; and day and night.
An endless stream the motors go,
Fast and slow—to and fro—
Though why, and where, I cannot know.

Snows are lowly and small to see,
Some are fine of high degree.
Many are trucks, with a heavy load,
Passenger vans, on the up-hill road.
On they go—to and fro—
Through rain or sunshine, mist or snow.

Who are the folk that within them ride?

'Traveling fast from far and wide?

Some on business or pleasure bent;

Sometimes on urgent message sent.

Fireflies bright, they seem at night,

As on they go with their gleaming light.

Birds of passage are they in truth,

Man and woman, child and youth,

So they travel the great highway,

Rolling along by night and day,

"Many shall go—to and fro!"

Jumps 17 Floors

Just as the net was moved silently upward past the 16th floor, Ward came at last to his decision. He stood with right foot half extending from ledge. He poised a moment then thrust his left foot forward, clear of the ledge, and plummeted downward.

First the body dropped head-on; then it began to spin crazily, around and end over end until it struck a marquee.

Below, the whole arena was alight with photographic flares and noise broke from the crowd, first in long moan and then in a series of sharp, individual screams.

Ward's last words were heard by Dr. G. C. Presner, a city Health Department physician who had talked with him frequently during the day.

"He said if we could promise him that life was worth living he would come in," the doctor said. "He said many people close to him were against him. He said that he tried many ventures and failed. He said he knew he should be penalized."

"There's no way out of it," Dr. Presner quoted Ward as saying. "I have been up here many hours trying to convince myself of a reason for living. I've made up my mind."

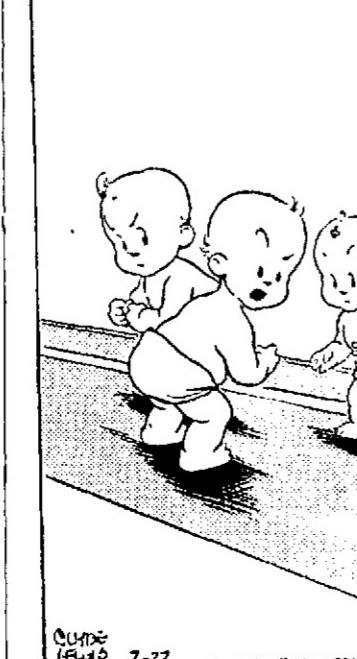

At that point, Dr. Presner said, Ward glanced upwards a moment and stepped off into space.

Forging a New Bond of Peace Between United States and Canada

Another steel link binding the United States and Canada will be welded when President Roosevelt goes to Canada in mid-August to dedicate the Blue Water International Bridge pictured above. The bridge, 8000 feet long, and arching 152 feet above the waters of the St. Clair river, connects Port Huron, Mich., with Sarnia, Ont. It cost almost $2,000,000, and commands an impressive view of the junction of Lake Huron with the St. Clair river, a point where teeming lake traffic funnels through the narrow channel. The American and Canadian governments built the respective approaches, and an international commission built the center span. The bridge opens a new fast route between Chicago and Montreal.

method of medical care would inhibit research, destroy initiative, depreciate the quality of medical care, and eliminate the personal relation between physician and patient.

For a monthly payment of $2.20 ($3.30 if service is to include family members), about 6000 G. H. A. members are entitled to services of a staff of salaried doctors and nurses, to hospitalization for 21 days, and to use of laboratory and X-ray equipment in the clinic.

The District of Columbia Medical Society, affiliate of A. M. A., is fighting the organization. The district corporation counsel and district attorney have both rendered informal opinions that G. H. A. operations are not legal, but the Legislative Advisory Council, a group of lawyers, issued an opinion to the contrary.

There is another aspect to the question in the United States—the growth of community hospital insurance plans which now are serving more than 2,000,000 members. Many of these function with the approval of, or have been organized by county and state medical societies under A. M. A.

In general, these plans provide a certain number of days of care in participating hospitals for members who pay a small monthly premium, ranging from 50 cents to $1. All of them differ in details.

Hospitalization Plans

Medical service plans for indigents operate in more than 100 cities (Oakland, Calif.; Des Moines, Ia.; Mineola, N. Y.; Harrisburg, Pa., etc.) and enable poor persons to receive complete medical care.

Prepayment medical care plans are in operation in 11 communities (Atlanta, Ga.; Seattle, Wash., etc.) and provide medical care for persons in low-income groups for an annual or monthly premium.

Postpayment medical service bureaus operate in 11 communities (Washington, D. C.; Wichita, Kan., etc.) and help individuals with low incomes to receive a reduction in their medical bills and to pay the bills on a monthly budgeted basis.

Growth of such hospitalization plans has not, however, diminished the agitation for some sort of program which will provide all medical care for low-income persons. Several state govern-

His Cows Can Now Get More Cuds Per Acre

ZENDA, Kan.—(AP)—Clarence Beat, farmer, thinks he has discovered a way his cattle can "eat their cake and have it too."

The way, he said, is to contour furrow the range land. He plows deep ditches at intervals across the range on a level line, so that the rain and snow water catch there and penetrate the soil instead of running off.

"After constructing furrows on a 78-acre pasture, the height of the grass increased even though more cattle used it for grazing," Beat said.

less you want law enforcement."

Concluding Speakers

Only one candidate for a township office came to the "milk." Spofford Scooter presented his candidacy for road overseer of Spring Hill township. Others in the race are: Alan Johnson, Arlen Moses and E. E. Phillips.

Jim Bearden, Hempstead county sheriff, took the stump in favor of R. A. Cook, candidate for governor. The opposition, Carl E. Bailey and W. S. McNutt, were lambasted generously by the sheriff.

County Judge Frank Rider gave a brief review of the condition of the county and told what could be expected of him during his next two years in the office.

Following Judge Rider, H. M. Stephens, of Blevins, and Luther Higgason and Steve Carrigan, both of Hope, made short speeches to the assembly.

The candidates moved on up the county Wednesday, speaking at Guernsey during the day, and going to Fultonton for the first of the only two night engagements. The other night meeting will be at Hope city hall Friday evening. Thursday Saratoga will play host to the office seekers.

Hartnett Given Boost in Salary

Chicago Cub Manager Says Dizzy Dean Will Hurl Regularly

CHICAGO—(AP)—Charles Leo Hartnett already is in the pocket-book in succeeding Charley Grimm as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the team, revealed that a new contract was signed by Gabby last Thursday, the day he took over the team. Hartnett was reported to have received between $18,000 and $20,000 this season as a player and although the figures in his new contract were not announced, they were reported to be around $24,000. The new document covers the balance of the season and "was most satisfactory" to Hartnett, Wrigley said.

Dean Back to Stay

Dizzy Dean, the $18,000 enigma, is back to stay. Hartnett says, and will take a regular pitching turn on the mound, although he will be given additional days of rest over the other pitchers. Hartnett named as his big four, Pitchers Bill Lee, Clay Bryant, Larry French and Tex Carleton. Carlton probably will have recovered from his sore arm by this week-end. Hartnett plans to use Bill Lee more as a relief pitcher, believing the rugged Lee can stand a lot of that kind of work.

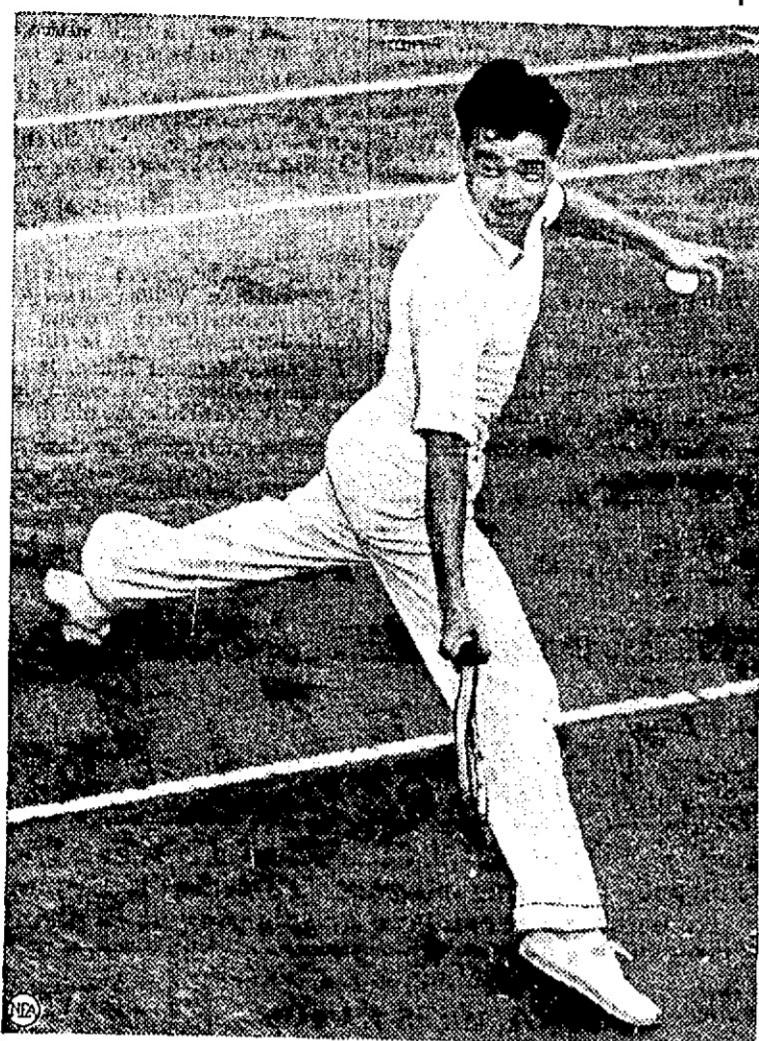

50 Games Remain

When the Cubs return August 15 to meet the St. Louis Cardinals, the season will be two-thirds over. They will have 50 games left to play, 28 at home and 22 on the road. Hartnett figures they will have a good idea as to whether or not they will be in the stretch race for the championship at that time. Today, after beating Brooklyn, the Cubs were only a half-game behind New York and four and one-half behind the leading Pirates. In beating the Giants three games in a row the Cubs accomplished a feat they had failed to do since the championship drive of 1925.

Gate Increases

The popularity of Hartnett worked wonders at the box office for the three games with the Giants and the battle with Brooklyn. In those three days he gate booted 104,431 paid, about 50 per cent more than would have showed up for the two double-headers and the single game, a remarkable tribute to the popular big Irishman.

Patmos Pounder to Meet Opponent to Be Named Thursday

Milton Powell, Patmos slugger who knocked out Floyd Howell of the CCC Camp on last week's program, has been signed to appear in the main event of Friday night's fight card at the athletic arena. The arena matchmaker stated Wednesday morning that a number of boys had asked for a chance to meet Powell and that the one selected would be announced Thursday afternoon.

At the request of numerous fight fans who witnessed last week's program another blindfold battle royal has been scheduled for Friday night's card. The royal will feature five blindfolded local negroes.

Chas. Ray Baker, local youth who knocked out Red Jones on last week's card, takes on Mutt Powell. Patmos fighter in the feature preliminary. Mutt is a brother of Milt Powell and should extend Baker to the limit. The bout will be three rounds.

Two local heavyweight negroes have been signed for one of the opening preliminary fights. Leo Dunlap, big 6 foot, 4 inch, 197 pound battle royal fighter, meets Edmond Davis, 210, colored battler, in the three round bout.

Joe Gentry and family have returned to Hope after spending the past year in Colorado and Arizona.

The home demonstration club met with Mrs. E. Aaron Thursday. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Joe England. Miss McElveen met with the club and led the discussion on "Home Management."

It was decided to have an ice cream supper for the club members and their families instead of a picnic in August. The hostess served delicious ice cream and cake.

SOUR TEMPERS MADE SWEET

When you are cross, irritable, and grouchy; when you find fault with the coffee, the eggs, the bacon, and the cook, you are probably suffering from what we have a touch of "Biliousness or so-called "Torpid Liver," so prevalent in hot weather. All you may need is a little calomel or better still, "Calotabs," the nauseous calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the combined effects of calomel and salts, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages, being the standard "Calotabs" Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Trial package ten cents; family package only twenty-five cents, at your dealers' (Adv.)

Death and Destruction---in Japan This Time

Nature gave Japan a taste of the horror that China has been undergoing when heavy July rains sent streams out of their banks and roaring through many of the larger Nipponese cities. More than 300 deaths were reported in the Osaka and Hyogo coastal region. This picture, taken in Kobe, shows a typical scene of destruction, with a warehouse about to topple over in the center of the photo. The foreign quarter of Kobe is near the hills shown in the background.

Forceful Debate"

Washington, June 1.—It is quite often difficult for a newly elected member of Congress to make an impression during the first term. Congress works something after the manner of a college. However, Representative John L. McClellan, of the Sixth Arkansas District, has made about as rapid progress during his first term as this writer has seen in his 30 years of service. He has won his way quickly through hard work and FORCEFUL DEBATE.

CLUB NOTESStyle Revue

Home Demonstration club women and 4-H club girls who will represent Hempstead county in the style dress revues at the 4-H club camp and the Home Demonstration Club camp are busy with their sewing this month.

4-H club girls who will represent Hempstead county in the style revue at the 4-H club camp at Fayetteville are as follows: Wool suit, Miss Melba Empnett, Patmos; 4-H club; school dress, Miss Frances Huitt, Patmos; 4-H club.

Home Demonstration club members representing Hempstead county in the style revue at camp Robinson are: Afternoon ensemble, Mrs. Wilbur D. Jones, Ozark-St. Paul club; church dress Mrs. Shirley Stuart, Ozark-St. Paul club; house dress, Mrs. C. F. Zimmerman, Melrose club; thrift garment, Mrs. C. A. Hamilton, McCaskill, club.

Expert sewing, such as is done by these women and girls, calls for a machine in good condition to save time, temper, and materials, and to turn out a well-made garment. Few things are more annoying than a machine that puckers the cloth.

Fortunately, the cause of puckered cloth can be very easily found and very easily remedied. When this happens, one or both tensions are too tight, the needle is not the right size.

When the tensions are evenly adjusted the lock in the stitch will be drawn exactly to the center of the cloth, according to Earl L. Arnold, extension agricultural engineer, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. If a sharp needle and thread are used and the needle and thread are the correct size for the cloth being sewed, it will be difficult from a visual inspection to tell which side of the cloth was up when the stitching was done. This situation may exist with both tensions too tight. To remedy puckering in this case it will be necessary to loosen both tensions. If the lock in the stitch does not occur in the center of the cloth, the puckering may be remedied by loosening only the tight tension, Mr. Arnold advises.

Dull needles and needles of improper size do not produce a true pucker. They draw threads from the cloth. However, in a casual inspection, the result cannot often be distinguished from the pucker resulting from tight tensions.

Before attempting to eliminate the puckering by adjusting the tensions, the needle should be examined, and replaced if it is dull or not the size recommended by the instruction book.
